This document is intended to assist brokerages in preparing a brokerage risk assessment using the six-step methodology described in FINTRAC's Risk Assessment Guide. If at any time you need additional space to explain your answer, or to document additional information, add the additional information on a separate page and attach it to this risk assessment.

Step 1: Identify your Inherent Risks<sup>1</sup> of Money Laundering and Terrorist Financing

Respond to the questions in Step 1, Section A, paragraph i-iv below. For now, ignore the "Risk Score" column in each table – this will be completed at the end of Step 1 after you've considered all of your inherent risks.

A. Identify and score your business-based risks

i. Identify your products, services and delivery channels

Identify all products and services your brokerage provides, and the manner in which these products or services are provided to your clients, by checking the relevant tick boxes below. Add additional rows if you provide other brokerage products or services with respect to the purchase or sale of real estate. For example, if you provide brokerage services for new real estate developments, new condos or assignment deals, consider listing them as a separate product/service below.

| Product/Service                                                                                      | Delivery Channels (How products/services are provided to your clients). Select all that apply.                                                                                                                                                                                                                               | Risk Score (Low/High) and Rationale |

<sup>1</sup> Inherent risk is the risk of an event or circumstance that exists before you implement controls or mitigation measures. In contrast, residual risk is the level of risk that remains after you have implemented controls or mitigation measures.

| Office Location #3: |         |

Answer the following questions for each office you have identified above. Add additional rows if necessary.

|                    | Geographic Considerations                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     | Risk Score (Low/High) and Rationale |
| Office Location #1 | Is office close <sup>2</sup> to an international border: <input type="checkbox"/> yes <input type="checkbox"/> noIs office close to an international airport: <input type="checkbox"/> yes <input type="checkbox"/> noIs office located in a known high crime area <sup>3</sup> : <input type="checkbox"/> yes <input type="checkbox"/> noOffice in: <input type="checkbox"/> rural area<input type="checkbox"/> urban area (<10,000 population)<input type="checkbox"/> urban area (≥ 10,000, but less than <100,000)<input type="checkbox"/> urban area (≥ 100,000) |                                     |

<sup>2</sup> What is "close" will depend on what the brokerage considers reasonable in their area. It is suggested that brokerage consider an office that is 10 km from an international border or 5 km from an international airport as being "close", although brokerages are free to use their own metrics (if a different metric is used it is suggested that this be documented and explained in this assessment).

<sup>3</sup> Meaning there is information on a government website indicating that the area is high-crime. See FINTRAC's Risk Assessment Guide for examples.

v. Score your business-based risks

Assign a risk of money-laundering and terrorist financing score by going back to each of the tables you completed in Step 1, Section A. You can use any type of scoring system you like but it is suggested you use a "Low"/"Medium"/"High" system. For each element in each table, write a brief explanation as to why you selected a particular score. Consult FINTRAC's Risk Assessment Guide, Canada's national risk assessment, FATF guidance, Transparency International guidance on the real estate sector as you consider what scores to assign.

B. Identify and score client and relationship based risks

Respond to the questions in Step 1, Section B, paragraph i-v below. In order to answer you should have a good understanding of your brokerage's clients.

i. Identify products, services and delivery channels clients are using

v. Score your relationship-based risks

In light of your answers above, group your clients into clusters based on common characteristics in the Cluster/Mitigation Table below. Assign a risk of money-laundering and terrorist financing score for each cluster<sup>6</sup>. You can use any type of scoring system you like but it is suggested you use a "Low"/"Medium"/"High" system. For each row, write a brief explanation as to why you selected a particular risk score. Some possible clusters, and suggested risk scores, are included below. Add additional rows if necessary. At the end of this step estimate how many high risk clients you have, and document your answer below. For now, ignore the "Risk Score" column – this will be completed in Step 3.

Cluster/Mitigation Table

| 6 | Clients with a material connection (e.g. residency) to a country considered high risk by the FATF ? Name the country: | High-risk or medium-risk (select one) | Clients with a connection to a high-risk country are riskier.                                              |                         |

<sup>6</sup> Note that in assigning risks to a particular cluster you should consider the actual risk that sales representatives are assigning to clients in their day-to-day interactions (Section C of the Information Record, if using CREA's template Information Records and Section 3.1.2.11 of CREA's template compliance program). You may find that sales representatives are assigning a risk higher or lower than you wish to assign to a particular cluster. If that is the case, consider educating your sales representatives on the risk associated when dealing with clients that fall into the cluster. It is the broker (and their compliance officer) who is ultimately responsible for determining the level of risk associated with a particular client and client cluster.

Step 2: Set your Risk Tolerance

Set your brokerage's risk tolerance after considering: (a) the risks you noted in Step 1; and (b) asking yourself the following questions:

- Are you willing to accept regulatory, reputational, legal or financial risks for your brokerage?
- Which risks are you willing to accept for your brokerage after implementing mitigation measures?
- Which risks are you not willing to accept for your brokerage?

Brokerage Risk Tolerance:

☐ High      ☐ Medium      ☐ Low

Document the rationale for your risk tolerance below:

Keep in mind that the risk tolerance you set does not impact your obligations under the Proceeds of Crime (Money Laundering) and Terrorist Financing Act and associated regulations. It may, however, impact what mitigation measures you put in place and which clients you wish to work with.

Step 3: Create Risk-Reduction Measures

Go back to the Cluster/Mitigation Table, in Step 1 paragraph v above, and document how you intend to mitigate the risks you have identified so that it does not exceed the risk tolerance you have indicated in Step 2. See Section 4.2 of CREA's template compliance program for ideas of possible risk mitigation measures you could implement. Note that FINTRAC expects that your brokerage implement enhanced measures for situations where the risk of money laundering/terrorist financing is high. Therefore, if you have labelled any section of your business as high risk, you will need to specifically address how you are mitigating these high risks elements of your business.

Step 4: Evaluate Your Residual Risk<sup>7</sup>

No matter how robust the risk mitigation measures you implement in Step 3 are, your brokerage will always have exposure to some residual money laundering and terrorist financing risk. Document what you understand are your remaining risks in the spaces below:

| Risk Category                | Risks (insert)                                  |
|------------------------------|-------------------------------------------------|
| Tolerated risks <sup>8</sup> | 12345678910 |
| Mitigated risks <sup>9</sup> | 12345678910 |

Step 5: Implement Your Risk Based Assessment

You must implement this risk-based assessment as part of your brokerage day-to-day activities.

You must also document the risk assessment as part of your brokerage's compliance program. Document this in Section 4.1 of CREA's template compliance program, if used.

Step 6: Review your Risk Based Assessment

You must institute and document a periodic review (minimum of every two years) of your risk assessment. See Section 6 of CREA's template compliance program for more information.

<sup>7</sup> Inherent risk is the risk of an event or circumstance that exists before you implement controls or mitigation measures. In contrast, residual risk is the level of risk that remains after you have implemented controls or mitigation measures.

<sup>8</sup> These are risks that you accept because there is no benefit in trying to reduce them. Tolerated risks may increase over time. For example, when you introduce a new product or a new threat appears.

<sup>9</sup> These are risks that you have reduced but not eliminated.
